Theoretical and practical basic course of intra-articular therapy Hand free techniques

Rome, April 14-15, 2015

Course Coordinator
Alberto Migliore

SIR educational course on intra-articular injections aims at teaching the basic techniques of the intra-articular therapy to Rheumatologists.

The intra articular therapy plays a relevant role in the local treatment of osteoarthritis, a disease that is increasing together with the increase of the lifespan expectancy.

The intra articular therapy is a relevant topic also in the management of inflammatory arthritis.

The course is structured as follows:

- A. Practical sessions on mannequins to learn injection techniques on joints without ultrasound guide
- B. Practical sessions on alive human models. The tutors will help participants to detect the landmarks for injections in each joints, except for the hip and the sacro-iliac.

Tutors will teach and work together with the trainees on the different approaches to infiltrative technique through injection simulation.
